CHARING PARISH CHURCH

The Church of ST. PETER and ST. PAUL, Charing, stands on ground given by King Ethelbert to St. Augustine, in the year A.D. 597, or soon after; but it is supposed that an antient British Church formerly stood on the same site. St. Augustine's Church has long since perished, and the present building belongs to the thirteenth century—the roof and interior being reconstructed after a fire in 1590. The living, formerly in the gift of the Archbishops of Canterbury, is now attached to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, London.

The Rectory was sequestrated by King Henry VIII in the thirty-eighth year of his reign, and by him devised to Leonard Hethrington; whence after divers exchanges, it is now attached to the Chapter of Canterbury. From 1546. In the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury.

O YE PRIESTS OF THE LORD BLESS YE THE LORD PRAISE HIM AND MAGNIFY HIM FOR EVER

O YE SPIRITS AND SOULS OF THE RIGHTEOUS BLESS YE THE LORD PRAISE HIM AND MAGNIFY HIM FOR EVER

NOTES.

Before 1541 Chester was in the Diocese of Lichfield. In 1057 Bishop Peter moved his See from Lichfield to Chester, making the Church of St. John his Cathedral, but his successor, Robert de Limesey, left Chester for Coventry in 1095. The present Diocese of Chester is one of six founded by Henry VIII on the Dissolution of the Monasteries. Originally, it contained the present Dioceses of Ripon, Manchester, Liverpool, Blackburn and part of Carlisle, but it now consists of the County of Cheshire.

How it all works

The Phelps Organ is not as you might expect, with 3 or 4 manuals, but only has 2 manuals and pedals.
Nevertheless, there are over 30 stops, and it is particularly versatile; excelling in French and German Baroque music, but in all other styles too. It has been used for recordings and broadcasts and featured on Radio and television. Many world famous organists have played here, most notably Dame Gillian Weir. Recordings of our organ and choir are available in the Abbey Shop.
Pictured here is the 'organ console' where the organist sits to play.
There are 2,304 pipes in total on the Phelps Organ. As you can imagine, tuning all 2,304 of them individually 3 times a year is a huge undertaking and takes a number of hours.

In the year 980 Athelstan bought from his father Athelred II the village of Hollingbourne & with his father's consent gave it to the church at Canterbury for the support of the monks there "And that I give it to Christ Church at Canterbury the land at Hollingborne & that belonging there to except one cotin which I have given to Sporth & the land at Gorwaldington." The parish as mentioned in the Doomsday Survey under its old name Hallingborde. There was a church on this site as early as A.D. 1086, a part of which now forms the inner wall of the modern vestry. The present Chancel Nave, North Aisle & Tower were built about 1320. In 1460 John Erame bequeathed money for the upkeep of the altars of The Blessed Virgin, St. Katherine & St. James. John Mayne bequeathed lights to our Lady on the beam. This referred to one of the figures on the old Rood Screen. The Culpeper Chantry dates from 1470 & an altar dedicated to St. John the Baptist stood here in 1527. After the Reformation Sir John Culpeper used this Chantry as a memorial chapel. According to his own design the roof was raised & an effective arrangement of alternate triangles of dressed stone & flint was incorporated, such a design is not usual in Kent. In the Chantry Chapel is the sculptured effigy of Lady Elizabeth Culpeper & on the wall are 12th shields of Lady Elizabeths four daughters embroidered a magnificent altar frontal depicting the fruits of Kent, during their father's exile with Charles [illegible] is displayed at Christmas, Easter & All Saints Day. The east window, the font & cover are all good examples of the decorated period of the 15th. The window in the South wall of the Chancel shows a view from the vicarage. There are six bells which presume of the heaviest to be found in Kent. Among the Church's treasures are the Jacobean pulpit, Registers from 1558-1709, a Late 17th silver chalice & cover, two large flagons, two silver alms dishes & a silver gorm with a garnish. In Nave hood, a gradual slope ascending to an easterly direction until 1815 when the unique positive was removed. The choir stalls were carved in the late 19th by a village craftsman who charged 1½ pence half penny an hour. There are several monuments worthy of note the oldest erected in 1616 by the second wife of Sir Martin Bowyer, the second figure on an inside of his first wife & on the other his own. The monument to Francis Culpeper who died in 1591 is of grey stone in the north wall of the Chancel. The painting above the west door is the Descent of the Cross by a pupil of Rubens.

ST ANDREW'S CHURCH

The Church of St Andrew, Plymouth, has stood on this site probably since the latter part of the Eleventh Century indeed there is as will be seen below, a complete list of Vicars since the year 1087. The only relic of the old building is the recumbent figure in Purbeck marble in the North Porch.

It was founded by the Priory of Augustinian Canons at Plympton and the present building, a very fine specimen of Perpendicular Architecture, dates from about 1380 to 1485, the earliest portion being the South Transept; and the latest the Tower, which was built by one Thomas Yogge, thrice Mayor of the Town, the stuffe being supplied by the Corporation. The Church, up to the time of the Dissolution of the Monasteries by Henry VIII in 1539, was served by the Priory, which appointed the Vicars, the most interesting of these being Cardinal Adrian de Castello, who was given the benefice probably as a reward for arranging the marriage of Prince Arthur, and later King Henry VIII, to Catherine of Aragon, who landed in Plymouth, and came to return thanks to Almighty God in St Andrew's Church. The figures of the Cardinal, Catherine and Drake may be seen in the South East Window. Later on the Church was closely identified with the famous seamen who defeated the Spanish Armada. Sir Francis Drake and his family worshipped here; and his wife and servant were buried here, and the heart of Sir Martyn Frobisher was deposited under the chancel steps, as recorded in the Registers of the Church. The Congregation of St Andrew's swarmed out from this building to welcome Drake back from his voyage round the world in the Pelican. Later the Church was closely associated with the Puritan Regime, and had for its Vicar in 1643, George Hughes the eminent Puritan Divine, who preached the Wo-Joy Trumpet Sermon before Cromwell and the Long Parliament. The most famous Vicar in later times was Zachary Mudge, who was a friend of Joshua Reynolds, the painter, and whose sermons were greatly admired by Edmund Burke. Boswell relates in his life of Johnson, that the Doctor paid a special visit to Plymouth to hear him preach. His fine bust by Chantrey, designed from a picture by Reynolds, may be seen in the South Transept, with epitaph written by Dr Johnson.

This ancient and historic Church, the fabric of which costs a large sum every year to preserve, has only an endowment for its upkeep of about £100 a year, and Visitors are asked to contribute generously for this purpose.

++ Coremac (also spelt Cormac) is thought to be the priest at the pre Norman church.

* The evidence for the names of the Priors comes from the occurrence of the prior's name in Priory / St. Mary's Abbey at York documents. The list is certainly not complete. An asterisk signifies when a name occurs in a document rather than a definite date of appointment. Very rarely are specific dates given when Priors held office. C(circa) indicates an estimate of the most likely dates they held office based on other evidence.

\+ A prior named William is witness to an undated charter (but not later than 1187) in the second half of the 12th century. There is a probably 12th century but undated grave slab for Prior William of Jernyngham in front of the altar steps of the c1190 Chancel which are now under the Old College Hall.

* Two priests (called Curates) are said to have held office jointly from, or even before, the Dissolution until at least the early 17th century. Though their specific dates as Curates are not known, William Hardness (also spelt Harkness/Hartness) held office, first with Thomas Brownrigg and then (1588 ?) with Nicholas Copeland (also spelt Copland). Copeland in 1602 stated that he had earlier held a St. Bees Curacy for four years. In the 16th/17th centuries the list of priests still has gaps.

\+ William Harrison , though he was the incumbent from 1785 until his death in 1816, did not officiate after Sept. 1806 and even from as early as 1788 many and finally from 1806, all parish duties were carried out by curates and other clergy, the last of whom from 1811 was William Wilson, the Headmaster of St. Bees School.

Throughout, the modern term of Headmaster has been used instead of the then correct title of Master of St. Bees Grammar School.

The CHURCH of Saint IA the Virgin

Saint IVES in the County of Cornuall

ON the site of this Church a building for the worship of Almighty GOD has stood since the time of St IA, (c.550). From prehistoric times to the 15th century LELANT was a seaport of importance and possessed in the 12th century a large Norman Church to which were attached the Chapelries of Saint IVES and TOWEDNACK, the inhabitants of these places having to go to LELANT for many of the important rites and ceremonies of the Church.

By the beginning of the 15th century the population of Saint IVES had greatly increased and the people petitioned for a fully consecrated Church of their own.

In 1410 the building of this present Church was begun. It was consecrated by Bishop LACY of EXETER on the 3rd February 1434, but remained a chapelry under LELANT until 1826 when it was constituted a separate benefice.

The Vicars of LELANT are still Patrons of Saint IVES.

For the Rectors and Vicars of Lelant from 1150 to 1826 when St IVES became a "Perpetual Curacy" the Roll of Incumbents of St Uny LELANT should be consulted.
